My ship is sailing away so open up the gates of love and let the little white dove fly down the country road to reach out and touch one man's tongue, for its a long road to freedom and not everybody has a gift of song like Neuben James who seems to still be following un Canadien Errant turn, turn, turning through this land only to find that happiness runs in a circular motion and everything is a strange dream in a bed of sweet violets where truck driving men have swung low and are now driving chariots through pasteurs of all kinds of people and cows named Gladys who murmur sweet Soolaimons to teach their children that we are Christians by our love and we've got to try a little kindness or nobody will wake up this morning for the old 97 will be a total wreck and the tears will go by so ask him why and hop on the banana boat to teach the world to sing and love one another by puttin a little love in your heart and your hand in the hand for the one tin soldier who shouted "we shall overcome" will pass on but before he does the Folsom Prison Blues will give his people strength, so Kumbaya!

P.S. You dirty ol' egg suckin' Dawg!

The above was written by Karen Christie (Viking) our "Hear and Now" member who leaves us during the winter months to attend Mt. Allison University in Sackville N. B. There are no periods or comas and whether it makes sense or not it's rather humourus, if read right! So Karen, we thank you for contributing, even if you didn't know it would be printed!!!

CORNWALL WEEKEND

The group left St. Lambert Baptist Church at about noon on Saturday, Oct. 21. We had packed people, equipment and one dog, on a bus heading for Cornwall, for the weekend.

The time passed quickly or slowly, if you're singing "Beer Bottles on the Wall," and we soon arrived at St. Paul's United Church, our place of residence, at about 2:45 pm..

Upon arriving, we practised for a couple of hours and then had dinner. (a pizza place on the main drag) We had another practise at 7:30 pm after which we were free to do anything we desired----within reason???

All were awakened at 7:00am next morning by 2 lunatics!!!

Later, we sang for two church services, the latter of which was broadcasted over a local radio station. Although we were told that we sounded very good, we had difficulty in getting a response from the congregation.

Our mid-day meal was enjoyed at the homes of various members of the church. These families made us most welcomed, and a good time was had by all.

By 4:00 pm, we were practising again for an hour. Following this, we were treated to a buffet dinner provided by St. Paul's and at the end of which we sang our final performance.

At 9:00pm, thoroughly tired, the singers, (what were left of them) boarded the bus and homeward bound believe it or not, again burst into song.

Finally at 11:00..yawn..we arrived..yawn..home.Goodnight..yawn..
